Ex-'Bachelorette,' hubby hit town

Trista Sutter (right), who gained fame as a contestant on The Bachelor and as the star of The Bachelorette, is in Orlando this weekend with her husband, Ryan, their 15-month-old son, Max, and friends. Friday they took in SeaWorld Orlando, feeding stingrays, meeting penguins and cozying up to Shamu and company. "I actually got kissed by a killer whale," Sutter said. "She even gave me tongue." Today they plan to visit Discovery Cove. The couple's first date alone was at SeaWorld in San Diego. She has appeared on magazine covers lately with the news that they are expecting another baby -- due in April. She has come to Central Florida as a special guest of today's Embracing Hope gala, a fundraiser of the Fertile Dreams organization, which gives grants to couples with fertility problems. Other stars scheduled to attend are tennis star Gigi Fernandez and golfing champion Jane Geddes. – DB
